The 2025 Public Affairs & Government Section Summit

Building Stronger Communities Together

About the PRSA Public Affairs & Government Section

The Public Affairs and Government Summit addresses multi-disciplinary interests of public affairs professionals and provides access to resources of interest to communicators who hold public affairs roles in private and NGO industry sectors as well as communicators with key roles in local, state, and national governmental bodies and the military.

This year's Public Affairs and Government Summit is presenting over 10 hours of professional development within a three-day span. A variety of best practices exchanges, network, panels, workshop, and collaboration among leaders whose talents are in high demand at the nexus of public policy, community safety, and protection and environmental concerns. This year's theme "Building Stronger Communities" celebrates the commitment of public affairs and government professionals to their communities and the connection we all have as public servants.

This is your organization's chance to gain visibility and engage with these communications pros.

This sponsorship offers a unique platform for you to forge meaningful connections, engage in strategic discussions, and build valuable relationships with public relations professionals within and outside the government communities. You will have unparalleled opportunities to expand your reach and foster collaboration with these groups of professionals.

We have several exclusive sponsorship opportunities with major billing in all summit communications.
